Adam Orzel

Today has been an amazing day. I have just watched my idol Dave Ryding win a World Cup Slalom race and stand at the top of the world.

My name is Adam Orzel and I am a skier from Birmingham, England. I am 13 years old and am currently ranked as one of the top British under 14 boys in Slalom Ski Racing. I dream to one day follow in the footsteps of my idol Dave Ryding and also race against the best in the world. This will take lots of hard graft, both on the slopes and also working hard in the gym to try and make myself the best I can be. This is something I am more than willing to do, however Ski Racing is a very expensive sport and I've been very lucky for my parents to help support me and my sister to follow our dreams. I am conscious though that we are going to need some real help along the way as the further you go in this sport the more expensive it gets.

My next goal is to be selected for the GB team in their under 16s category. To do this I'm hoping that I can continue to build on the podiums I've achieved so far this winter.

My dreams of living in the mountains drive me every day and help motivate me to become faster, better and stronger!

My name is Alexander. I live in Russia, in the north in the city of Murmansk. I am engaged in biathlon. I dream of reaching the world level in this sport.

Christopher Jaymez Carter

My name is Christopher Jaymez Carter, I am from Nikiski, Alaska. I've been snowboarding and skateboarding my whole life. Like ever since I can really remember. My dreams have always lead to a profession in either one of them.

Snowboarding is where I seek more of a career status but skateboarding helps my steeze, my creativity, and my movements progress in my snowboarding.

My achievement in life is to never stop seeking the next great thing. Wether it being a new street spot to rally, a new trick to bust, or a new slick style of Ripping.

My greatest challenges are money, life hardships, and location.

Money because, you gotta have the cash to play and when your tryna play hard you gotta have more cash. That's where friends and good size groups come in cause you can band together and make it happen. But you never know when your gonna have to step up a bit more for the homies.

Next is life hardships, I suffered from drug addictions and crazy childhood trauma's. Making life hard. It was hard for me in school cause I couldn't find the right path. Life was just going crazy and It only now feels like I got a better grip on it.

Locations been a hard one for myself cause here in the great Ak, in these small towns people lose motivation quickly due to early nights in the winter. Lack of the vitamin d. And the drug epidemic takes lives without remorse. So it's really hard to find the people who are down to ride ya know? And it's hella popping in the states for skating/snowboarding, everybody knows that. So some people will lose that will to make the best of what they got when they see people have it better.

I traveled to Boise Idaho and found a great group of rippen friends that made riding more exhilarating. And it showed me how Alaska kindov just didn't have that feel. At least where I was.

That's all I really got for ya keep the stoke up!

My dream is to be at the Olympics games. Win the Alpine Skiing World Cup

I like to ski and snowboard it's lit

I am Emilia Orzel, a British 15-year-old ski racer living in Birmingham, England and part of the English Alpine squad. Me and my brother train with Excel Ski Academy when abroad in the winter and with Ski MK race team whilst in the UK.

I've been skiing since I was 5 years old and love every single time I put on a pair of skis. Over the years I've had lots of amazing successes and podiums and I am working towards constantly trying to get faster and better.

When in England – I train on indoor slopes which whilst not the same as being in the mountains are good as it means we can ski all year round and the short runs means we can get lots of feedback technique practice.

Covid has been tough for getting into the mountains, but has allowed me to really focus on off-snow training. Unfortunately last year I had a serious crash and the last 12 months has been focussed on rebuilding from a serious knee injury, which is never easy but I believe only makes you stronger.

I'm now working to get back to my best, putting the injury behind me as a distant memory, and getting stronger and fitter to make me faster when on my skis.

After all of the hard work put in, I would love to finish the season as one of the top UK under 16 girls. I know I have the skills to do this, and am determined to leave a great marker for myself in UK children's racing before moving on to FIS International racing.

Over the years, skiing has taught me a lot: strength, determination and a hell of a lot more and I hope that it continues to teach me new skills as I travel along this journey after all, it's a marathon, not a sprint.

My name is Joyce ten Raa. I am 18 years old and I ski for the Luxembourgish National Team. My biggest dream is going to the olympics and I will do the best as I can so I can make that dream come true.

My Name is Magnus Fischer, I'm 14 years old and I am from Austria. I am a Skier and I live and ski in the south of Austria, which is called carinthia. My two biggest rolemodels are River Radamus and Lucas Braathan because to me they have the best and most modern style and skiing technik. My goal is to be in world cup when I am 18 and to may be able to ski with them. So far my biggest achievements in skiing were in national championships beeing on of the best at my age and many wins in my state. I'm really hoping to be able to do this sport for many more years and in a profesional way.

My name is Nolan Biewenga, I am 16 years old and live in Wollerau and in winter mainly in Laax Switzerland. Since this year I visit the Swiss Academy in Zurich. A school that allows me to combine school and sports.

My passion is freestyle skiing. At the age of 8 I started with it and the "virus" got more and more packed, I can't stop anymore, I'm on the slopes as soon as the first snow falls. I just enjoy learning new tricks and being outdoors in my element of "snow".

I'm a proud holder of a Swiss Olympic Talent Card National and have been competing on contest within

Europe

I'm currently competing in Europa cup contests this season and trying to improve my results even more.

Off-season, the training is different, I do "dry" trainings on the trampoline and airbag.

Depending on weather and snow conditions, I train on the glacier. Actually, I am always occupied with freeski. I live according to my motto «every day is a freeskiday»

I have a big dream and work very hard for it. My dream is to get to the top and participate in the World Championships and the Olympic Games. This requires a lot of diligence, ambition and perseverance on my part. Besides all that, the costs for a season are very high. I know, this is a long, hard way to get there, but I'm purposeful, motivated and just enjoy my passion.

Sporting greetings

Nolan

Hi! Im Olive Wood AKA "TheSkiingOlive"

I'm from England in the UK. I've just turned 7 years old and have been skiing since i was 3 years old! Although there isn't much in the way of alpine skiing opportunities in Manchester I'm lucky enough to live near some great training facilities. I started with the kids club at my local dry slope Rossendale, which I still love to attend, I'm also a member of 2k performance at the same location which is a dedicated race club meaning I get race focused training on a weekly basis! I've had my first couple of races with some great success and plenty of podium finishes! After my first taste of race i was keen to push myself further and improve my skills so I attended a couple of sessions with the Austrian based "Excel ski academy" at my local indoor ski slope the "Chill Factor" I was blown away by the standard of the older kids and the quality of the coaching. I must have impressed them too as they invited me to train with them full time in Austria, making me their youngest ever athlete! We didn't think about it for too long before we packed up our bags, family and the dog to head south across the continent to the alps! I've been here since December training on the slopes and studying in the classroom with excel, I still have to do school work from my school in the UK! The days are jam packed, I'm up at 6am and rarely home before 6pm but I am loving every moment of it! In just a few weeks I've developed from a fast snow plougher into a parallel carving machine! Not that i needed any further motivation but i was so excited to watch Dave Ryding win the first ever Gold for GB in a FIS world cup race just around the corner from where I am training! I'm excited to see how much further i can develop with Excel before heading home to hit the races again! Please follow me on instrgam! Happy skiing!

My goals are, that my athletes win a lot of medals at the Paralympics in Beijing.

I skied for 15 years and have been a trainer for 8 years. This year we have two major events with the Para World Championship in Lillehammer and the Paralympics in Beijing. My goal is to support my athletes in all respects and help them on their way to the gold medal both on the snow and athletically. Especially in the Para Ski division, it is very helpful to plan and train individually. But also as a trainer, I am a role model for young talents and would like to contribute my experience to the club as much as possible. I do everything for my team and try to create the best possible training conditions. In addition, communication in the team is very important to me. If you want to know how such a training day in the Para Ski team works, get in touch with me.

I want to work hard in my skiing and see what level I'm able to reach and to continue to improve and enjoy it. I also want to help others whether that is through skiing in the future I am not sure, but my other aspiration is to become a sports physiotherapist. I have come further in skiing than I thought I would, being selected for the English team and getting to participate in alpine races- meeting lots of amazing and inspirational people such as my friends and associates within skiing which push me to try harder in turn.
